[For the Polynesian.] THE PRINCE OF THE KINGS OF THE EARTH

How oft has fancy strove to paint. The splender of a regal line; The honors that about it wait-The clories that around it shire. The servile througe the warlike bands— The wealth that sweeping conquest brings And all the nameless pomp that stands At a dant on the thrones of Kings.

But who can tell the state of Him Whe holds his Kingly Court afar ;-Beyong the brightest golar b ani-Beyond the highest glittering star; Whose throne -con-ollinted light O'er arched by gorgeous rainbow huce,-Dazzies the rapi Archangel's sight! Who, low with trembling rapture, views?

And can be ever yet be mine,
To be presented spotters there?
Presented by the Man Divine!
The Father's Co-Fternal Heir! Shall I a worm ascend that seat Where the first glowing Se aph sings? And specialle-s fall before the seet Of Him, the Prince of Earthly Kings?

I may! for he who bell withstood, He has the full condentials given, Steped with his own atoning blood My passport to the highest heaven. I with august orders bright May be ast my high in-mortal birth, Attend in his own realms of light The Prince of all the Kings of Earth.

Dec. 2.-Continued rain. The besiegers begin to erect huts for shelter. Deserters say that the condition of the Russians in the field is worse than that of the Allies. Much bell ringing and rejoic; ing heard in Sevastopol during the night, supposed caused by the arrival of provisions.

Dec. 5 -The Russians made a sortie against the French lines, when eight divisions of French under Gen. Forri, repulsed them with much loss. Dec. 7 .- The Paris Moniteur says, the besiegers' batteries were re-established, and before three days, firing would be resumed. The allies sufficiently intrenched and provisioned to remain throughout the winter. Dec. 13 .- A Russian dispatch states that up to this date nothing of importance had occurred before Sevastopol. Some small sorties had been successful; in one of them the Russians captured some small mortars and spiked others of a larger size. The fire of the allies continued feeble.

MARSEILLES, Thursday, 12 o'clock M .- The Fidels has arrived from Constantinople, with dates to the 10th of Dec., and bringing accounts from Balaklava to the 8th. The Vladimir and a second Russian steamer arrived, on the 6th, outside the Quarantime fort. The French had repelled the continual sallies of the Russians.

The 9th and 90th regiments and a part of th 34th had arrived since the 4th. Gen. Pennefather was ill at Balaklava; Lord Cardigan had left for England.
